Automation not Automatically Good in Mobile Social Applications

Sami Vihavainen

Mobile Social Interaction Getting Increasingly Automated

- For example: automatic camera phone photo tagging and sharing, automatic location disclosure in LBS.

- Data processing, decision making, and communication of processed information increasingly done by a machine instead of human.

So what…

…happens when social processes are being controlled by automation?

What are the implications of increasing automation in interaction and use of mobile social media?